

Music video plan

We have chosen to use the song "Love the way you lie" by Rhianna and Eminem in our music video. We chose this song because we wanted a song that had a story-line and a good moral message, so that we could put this message across. We chose to feature ourselves in our video as the characters we were portraying. We chose to use ourselves because it was more efficient and we had a lot of knowledge of what we were doing.

We chose to make a story line about domestic abuse because that is what the song is about. Also we wanted to make people aware that this happens on a daily basis, so it would make them think. It could also encourage victims of domestic abuse to speak up. We needed to make it as real and effective as possible so we had scenes about physical abuse, Lewis pretending to punch me. We had scenes of emotional abuse, with me crying and Lewis depressed. And we also had scenes showing that we still loved each other, but were scared to leave each other at the same time. This is often the case with abusive partners, you still love them but you know they are bad for you.

We had close up shots to show emotion and anger on our faces, and we had two shots with both of us fighting.

We also decided to give the effect of a camera being on a track, so that you could see around us when we are in the park scenes.

The start of the video is us being happy together and the end is us being unhappy. We did this to show that there is love and hate in the relationship so we wanted to show a bit of both.
